1040 Diagnostic Training: How to Read a Tax Return Like a Tax Planner

*Dominique Molina, CPA, CTS, MST, CEO of AICTP

Most tax professionals look at a Form 1040 and see completed forms. Strategic tax planners see something very different. In this hands-on training, you'll learn how to "read the labs" of a tax return using a diagnostic approach designed to uncover hidden tax savings opportunities line-by-line through the Form 1040. You'll learn how experienced planners interpret the return itself to identify where additional deductions, income shifting opportunities, entity planning, credits, timing strategies, and structural tax savings may exist.

This course is ideal for tax professionals who want to move beyond compliance and begin thinking like true advisors.

Federal Tax Cases to Know to Show Your Tax Chops

Annette Nellen, CPA, CGMA, Esq., Professor & Director of San Jose State MST Graduate Program

Over many decades of tax cases, a body of judicial doctrines have been created and frequently used. Generally, these are not part of the Internal Revenue Code, but must still be considered because a tax provision might not apply if a judicial doctrine, such as substance over form or the step transaction doctrine, interprets the facts in a different light. This webinar identifies and explains key judicial doctrines and rules with examples, to further support and expand our "tax chops" for compliance and planning purposes.
